

Residential College in the Arts and Humanities
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

What Makes a Writer?

One writer's 52-year journey from English class rebel to grammar cop and book author

Jane Congdon is a professional writer and editor, as well as the author of the new memoir, How the WILD EFFECT Turned Me into a Hiker at 69: An Appalachian Trail Adventure. She is co-author with her brother of Mr. Joe: Tales from a Haunted Life. Jane's first memoir, It Started with Dracula: The Count, My Mother, and Me, was published in 2011. All three were published by Bettie Youngs Books.

Free and Open to the Public!

3 p.m.
Tuesday,
October 30
LookOut! Gallery
Snyder Hall, 362 Bogue St.